Words of our Beloved Prophet

« Good morning to you my seagull friends.
So happy to live with you this anniversary of the creation of the first Human Being or of the first seagull, which had within itself, just like you chose to have it, the potential to stop trampling in its droppings, but instead elevate itself and realize that when one flies, one has less chance to have one's feet in the « shit ». To fly is actually the only way to not have one's feet in the shit; and this is why you have decided to fly as one day you saw a strange man dressed in white who was flying while everybody was saying : « He is crazy, we are meant to have our feet in the shit ». You saw him, you listened to him and you started to fly, without a parachute.

The more you elevate yourself, the more you feel like doing it and the bigger the difference, the gap, between those who fly and those who swarm in the shit; the higher we fly, the further we are from those who trample like frogs and toads, and the more they find us bizarre, the more we may have this illusion of a strange sensation which may push us to say: "Are we right?" "Should we go back to the shit to be like everybody else?" This is then that our conscience needs to bring us back to the truth which is that the more different we are from those who are at the "poo" level, the closer we are from the truth.

In other words, if our teachings, your Prophet and our philosophy were becoming accepted by all and that instead of being 200 in this room, we were 10,000 , we should be worried as it would mean that there is a big chance that it has dropped to the level of the dung. Do not succumb to the temptation which is to say: "we should be in a stadium with 10,000 people after 32 years!" Please don't think that way, I would be worried if we had a queue out there of 10,000 people, I would say: "oops, my teaching has dropped to the level of the dung."

Our philosophical soaring can only exist if it is prophetic and thus, if we have some advance. A Prophet who says what happens today is a false Prophet. A Prophet who attracts you to the future and who has not one but thousands, tens of thousands of advances, to make you dream an impossible dream; to show you a reality that the most gifted amongst us will see in about 50 years, that Prophet is a true Prophet. But the one who prophesizes what will happen tomorrow morning at 8:30am, he is more likely to be just capable of being elected as a representative of the Wallis County J ( FYI: Wallis is a region of Switzerland where representatives have been mean to our Beloved Prophet)

Your Prophet flies high, so high that the frogs and the toads cannot see him where he is. Even with the most powerful radio-telescopes, they cannot see him. You, you can see him because you fly with him. It is the only way to see him. No telescope, no satellite can approach these heights as when one is in the "shit" one cannot see the Truth, even with glasses. On top of that the glasses may be dirty J

The only means to see the truth is to elevate oneself, it is to have the trigger that make you say: "what about trying?" and you did it. But do not succumb! I know you are tempted and it is normal, a kind of vertigo from the altitude which makes you say : " yes fine, but I feel a little lonely and we should be thousands ;

am I right?" Do not succumb, unless you really feel like going down to the shit. But you can go and visit. There are chances that this will give you the desire to climb back real quick.

It is a temptation which made some of you fall already but you came back quick, because once we taste the bliss of altitude, the frog's level is not fun to live at anymore, anyway, not too long, especially since it stinksJ

I would like you to enjoy the supreme delight to be just a few, instead of suffering from it. Take the fact that only a few people have the capacity to join us as a privilege and not like a reason to moan. Be full of joy and if some amongst your leaders loose hope, you have to kick their ass. Some are sometimes saying: "Yes, but you know, we are not many and how come that everybody is against us?", kick their ass!

Fly higher, do not look at the flock that doesn't know how to fly and which doesn't even want to know that it is possible to fly. Look higher, you will see there the only interesting butt, Rael's oneJ . As long as you see his butt, it means that you haven't reached his level.

Then, you have the choice between a stinky fly down or you can beat your wings stronger to go higher where he calls you, go where he tells you to go.

-- "Yes but no one will follow, Oh Prophet, no one will follow and we are already so few. If you take us higher, we will even be less numerous!"

-- "Yes, It is done on purpose"

This process is necessary for the refinement of the consciousness, this diamond that we have between our ears. We so not seek for numbers, we look for quality.

Here is for you a small taste of the coming summer seminar...

Let's have a more panoramic view.

The more we elevate ourselves, the more panoramic is the view. This is the macro-biology I told you about already.

What is this whole creation about? We have been created, they took dust, and they animated it to create consciousness, one to start with, then more to follow... What is this for? Wouldn't it be better to remain as dust?

No, because there is something left after. There is a refinement of the consciousness. Remember that the Elohim are taking the best, those who elevate themselves, those who fly higher. They take them and they put them in an Indian reserve on the Eternals' planet. One day, we, humans, will do the same thing. Who are we going to put in our own Indian reserve where they will have eternity? Only those who fly higher than the others. Those who fly lower, even in the Elohim's civilization, they live on the Elohim's planet, they are happy, they have dumb TV shows, they have horse races, lottery. But those who are accepted on the planet of the eternals, they are different. They fly high. This is the selection I am talking about.

Let's make a step back to go ahead better...

What are these creations and selection useful for ?

In this infinite universe, infinite in all directions, in all senses and in all times, why is this useful? Why is there such a selection? We can ask the question.

There are things we cannot really answer because we cannot even conceive them with our current brain, but there is a process of "conscientization" of the infinite in the universe of which we are. It means that in a infinite number of locations in the universe, there is a global process of consciousness' elevation by the selection of those who fly higher. This is a beginning of an answer.

With that you should feel less lonely. As when you fly very high and you feel far from the unconscious mass, just like the few neurons of our consciousness in our body may feel terribly far from the mass of the cells of the legs, the liver, the intestine and they may feel like "we should go down there, we'd rather be like the "shit" we have inside us". The consciousness may feel like that but on the contrary, it must elevate itself infinitely and shouldn't feel lonely.

When you feel lonely, tell yourself that in the universe, there are an infinite number of people who are in the process of refining their conscience to elevate themselves always higher and to belong maybe to the conscience of the infinitely large being in which we are. Interesting, isn't it?

This is why you cannot feel lonely and you always have the choice between flying down to the « shit » or elevate yourself, and take it and understand it as a privilege. Never should the glimpse of a disappointment reach you when you enter a Raelian meeting with the Prophet where you could say: "how come we are not thousands?". On the contrary, rejoice! If one day we are thousands, it will be either because I have disappeared or because my brain has been damaged by aging and I would have become politically correct. In such a case, lots of people would join us, but it wouldn't be a good sign. Rejoice from this singularity that you represent and that you should keep on representing by imagining and dreaming of course that we are having all the seagulls fly off the ground. But even if they were all flying, we would have to fly higher. We shouldn't feel satisfied to see them all reach our level; otherwise we would miss our function of awakener, of raiser of consciousness. We will have to always stay concentrated on keeping this difference in altitude. If the flock flies higher, the difference between the flock and us must stay big, always infinitely bigger, otherwise we would cease elevating them and it means we would fail our vocation. Keep that in mind. It is you to whom I talk now. You shouldn't say: " I am only a small Raelian and Rael is wonderful". I am talking to you as, if I die tomorrow – and I had the feeling lately that it was close but it is getting better now—it is you all here who would take over, otherwise my life would have been for nothing and the seagull that was flying high would have been flying for nothing. Its flight would have been useless. You amongst the most simple, those who are shy, those who feel they are not brilliant, those who are not even level 1, all of you will keep on flying high, on transmitting my teaching, this light, this amazing hope, a hope for all, a hope even for those who have decided it is better to stay down with their feet in the "shit" and who look full of hatred at those who fly higher. Despite this, we work for them all. To save this planet we also have to save those who hate us. We are also giving them a more beautiful future with more stupid TV shows, more horse racing, but where they will be happy, at least less unhappy with small pleasures instead of killing each other, making war, slaughtering each other and collecting dramas in their life. Not so bad. Also in this continuous flux of human beings who are born and who die, there are small diamonds who are there to fly and join us and we must be here for them as a headlight so that suddenly they look at the sky and they start to fly.

They will hear "It's a sect, come back down!" , but they will still climb, if your light is strong enough. Is your light strong enough? It is your duty to culture it, being 100% concentrated upward as in this infinite climbing of the consciousness heights, it is as if you were climbing the Alps in Switzerland. You have to look up, always reminding yourself that you may be high but it is nothing compared to what is left to climb and that you are able to do it. But you must desire it and you should never look down telling yourself: "I was feeling better down there, at least no one was pointing their finger at me, no one was looking at me, no one was hating me."

But the more people hate you, the closer you are to reach a level closer to the light. Those who don't see the light hate those who elevate themselves as they make them realize their inability to see what you see. This is why they hate you. Forgive them, they don't feel what you feel. Forgive them, they don't understand what you understand. Forgive them. And this is why we cannot hate them but they hate us automatically as they don't understand what we understand, they don't feel what we feel and they don't see what we see. There is nothing more terrible than someone telling you: "did you see, there is a mountain full of lights with a pink flower at its top that is two kilometers wide".

-- "I don't see anything?"

-- "Yes, here, I am going there now and I will devote my life to it"

-- "But he is crazy, it's a sect.." and he starts to hate you. But you see the rose and the lotus with its thousands petals at the top of the mountain and you have decided to climb this Everest of consciousness and this is why you are here with me.

It is 3pm now and we are in contact with those who created the seagulls, the first seagull and all those that follow after so that this conducting thread of humanity for which a generation is a fraction of a second and a millennium is a minute and which links us directly on this first Sunday of April, to Adam and Eve, to the Elohim, to the Elohim of the Elohim and to those who will call us like that one day.

After the transmissions, our Beloved Prophet said a few more words:

"I learned something that gave me lots of enthusiasm, it is about your free hug actions. Our enemies may say that Raelians are doing it for publicity, etc. But I was told that young people, 12 or 13 year olds, saw you do it and they made their own posters and started to do free hugs as well. I think it is so beautiful, you are changing society. You are training young people to give love without expecting anything in return as they don't have a message to spread! You are wonderful. I am happy when you do it, but I am happier when non-Raelians do it as this is the goal, to change the planet with the love that it lacks so much. Congratulations for inspiring youngsters like you did! I was imagining the parents in the evening...

- "we saw the Raelians" ;
- "it's a sect"
- "yes but we did like them" ...

Ohlala ! They cannot criticize the fact of giving free hugs to others but at the same time they are not happy as it is an idea of Rael just like Clitoraid attracts lots of people by its actions but some find it suddenly terrible when they realize that Rael had the original idea. Tell them next time: "would you find it better if Rael was in favor of circumcision?" It is weird, it is laughable and it is normal. They are normal seagulls and you are flying seagulls, it is there that lays the difference.

I will end with a small prophecy as a Prophet is there to deliver prophecies. It is a short term prophecy, a small prophecy, the kind that helps big prophecies to be acceptedJ

I am very optimistic about what is going on, on Earth, especially with the young people in the US. You have seen what happened with the manipulation of emotions after the Sept 11 attacks where Bush arrived and manipulated emotions in order to create hatred, illegal wars – they are all illegal by essence--, illegal occupations, illegal detention like in Guantanamo bay, a terrible campaign of hatred, a sickening slaughter... it is a world of terror. The manipulated American people have supported Bush's decision by 80% at first and now this has dropped to 25% and there is a generation of young Americans, very young, who are doing their own videos and this is awesome. I predict a new generation of peace and love, of young Americans who are coming up with long hair, shirts with flowers like in the old good time of the 60s and who want only one thing: peace and love, peace, we are fed up with the military...

I read a piece of news that pleased me this morning even if it is sad. There has been more death by suicide in the British army over the past three years than during the conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq. Wow ! 480 deaths during the fights and 620 by suicide. It means that military people are unhappy. Our genetic code is made for love and peace and if people are pushed to kill, they do it but they are feeling bad. We are feeling good when we are in love, surrounded by love, we can feel it. Because of some emotions, we might kill people who have hurt us, but it doesn't fix anything. It doesn't fix the despair one feels after losing people in an attack. Love your enemies; it is the message of Jesus. When you are hit on the left cheek, offer the right one. It is the only hope for humanity, to stop being manipulated by some emotions and be manipulated by the reason; to become what we are supposed to be according to our given name, homo sapiens, which means wise man, a man guided by wisdom instead of being guided by his emotions. Politicians have only one goal: to use emotions to manipulate people and this must stop, and it is happening less and less.

My last prophecy is that a world revolution is happening. The young people will gather through the Internet and say "Basta, we have had enough of your bullshit, we don't want it anymore, we don't want your big chiefs anymore, your big politics, your big armies, we want peace."

I am very very optimistic, especially in America which is unfortunately a leader in violence but, following the yin and the yang principle, when there is an excess in one direction, it goes all the way to the other direction and this is what is happening now. To go from 80% support to Bush to 25%, there isn't a better illustration of what I was announcing at our convention two years ago when it was at its worse. It is now happening.

Do not feel desperate with what is happening, on the contrary, everything is fine. But we must move our butt, we must participate, we shouldn't stop being active and repeating what we have said all along; I have trust in the fantastic and amazing young generation. I have had a few contacts with young people for example about what happened to me in Wallis, Switzerland, where I requested a permit for residency which was denied to me – by the way, I don't want this residency, I was asking just to see; even if they give it to me, I will not stay, but we will keep on asking as we are right to denounce what they did--
I am not Swiss, I am planetary and you too, you are not Swiss, we are planetary. We don't want these frontiers anymore. We are the children of the Earth, children of Humanity; we are close to the Chinese, to the Americans. What a stupidity these frontiers!

I was watching a TV series this week showing catastrophic events as catastrophes always sell. Media and politicians are accomplices in the way they play with the passions and the fears of people to sell their news everyday and attract audiences. They were saying that in Europe it is frightening, there is not enough births, not enough people to pay for the pensions, etc, you know the story. The journalist was saying: "If we cannot push people to have children....". It is terrible to say that! They want to push people in rich countries to have children so that people in poor countries cannot emigrate. Wow, so much love!

"You, you cannot enter! We don't have enough children but we will push our wives to have children and you can stay in your mess". It would be so simple and already some intelligent countries have started to do it, to say: "we don't have enough children, no problem, there are countries which have too many of them, let's welcome them and push them by education to have less after, so that we don't get too many on this blue planet that is already quite polluted because of overpopulation." This is a big hope that we are starting to see, the stupidity of the frontiers and the fact that we are a planetary village and that it is the only solution for children to stop writing on walls 'NO FUTURE" but rather " WHAT A BEAUTIFUL FUTURE we have" if we tell how stupid these frontiers, these national governments and these nationalisms are. Also we start to realize that either we save ourselves together or we destroy ourselves mutually, and this is coming. I am very confident it is happening.

This being said, when Raelians meet and have children, I am very happy. They are children born thanks to me. But don't have too many of them!."

A little later, he added...

"Regarding the explanation I gave earlier about the privilege to be just a few, I don't want you to say: "Rael says that because he has no choice". No, no, remember at the beginning we had weird people joining us, some had really lots to work on but now it is much more refined, there are almost only top-ranked individuals. I would like you to see that this is not an excuse, a justification. Each time that someone joins us, that the door opens and someone comes in, do not say "cool here is a newcomer", but rather tell yourself: "does he deserve us?"

Because it is not obvious. You must have these type of thoughts when you spread the message; it will give you a great comfort and will make you brighter. You don't need to say "we must find new disciples, we must convert" No, we diffuse, but do the people we talk to deserve to join us? Will they join a sect that will be a crutch to replace an intellectual and moral void or a lack of hope? It is good if it helps them to have a good time, but do they deserve it? Did they understand well? One must deserve to be with us, one must deserve to be with the last Prophet. He welcomes them all, he will give them all a caress, he will look at them with compassion and love, but it doesn't mean that they have fully understood what it means to elevate themselves spiritually. Forgive them, they don't know what they do. Forgive them, they don't know who they are. I am full of forgiveness and compassion for these people. However think about all this and you will feel so well instead of winging on the fact that you are alone in your town and that you don't find any other disciple. Tell yourself: "there isn't anyone who deserves to join me otherwise he would already have done so". We are easy to find on the Internet. Those who come, you have been like them, they have the enthusiasm at first but family and their friends say: "Rael, pedophilia and other dumb things". It is wonderful that such things happen as they are filters for dumb people. All those who join us and are not too strong cannot stay with us. Super! The filter is working well. Those who come despite the critics, they have looked for themselves, they have searched and they know what is behind the critics.

This joy of life that you have, do not let it drop because of some frustration linked to a low number of Raelians. We don't need to be a lot, we need quality, we need people who understand and the filters do their job. You don't need to justify them. The filter is useful

- "Rael, your philosophy is interesting, but why do you dress like that ? you look like a clown. Why do you have this ridiculous knot on your head? We would have more people if..

My answer is: "It is done on purpose, they are anti-dumb filters".

There are people who look at me and decide not to talk to me. Great! I am saving a lot of time. And there are those who say "what is behind these clothes, what is your philosophy?"... I don't want to loose time with those who are making fun of my clothes.

Be yourselves with your outfits, your look, your words, and your disguise. When I come and see you, I disguise myself into Rael as it is my disguise as well, an anti-dumb disguise, and it works really well.

Have fun and you will see you will be happy to be remarkable.

Be remarkable people who made dumb people afraid, you will save a lot of time and those who are intelligent will say : "what is behind it?" You will have saved time. Remember Einstein and his hair. He wasn't politically correct. Remember Mozart. Be yourself, live your clown life; there are people who want to know what is behind the clown. There are more chances that people will come to you like that rather than coming to you when you have a suite and a tie.

Seagulls have wings, they are being looked at, especially if they are pink seagulls, it is stronger. Be yourself; express your color before the pigments that compose you, return to the Earth.

NEWS AND VIEWS

RAEL has sent his congratulations to the leaders of the Church of Scientology in Europe who won at the European Court for Human Rights, the right to be recognized as a Church in Russia after being denied by this country. Our Beloved Prophet expresses his joy to see such a decision which will force other countries to respect this basic right for all religious minorities all over Europe, especially in France, Belgium and Switzerland where discrimination is unfortunately too common.

Our Beloved Prophet added : "the media are obviously biased regarding this subject of respecting human rights since none of the Swiss or French media have reported the news. If the Church of Scientology had been condemned, it would have been on the first pages but when it wins, no one talks about it! It is then our duty as members of a minority to let the public know as the Catholic and Masonic mafia, allied for such a case, tries to hide the truth by controlling all media. Luckily the Internet among other free media, can claim the truth. The decision of the European Court must be respected by all 46 European countries which are members of this convention. The national legal systems will be forced to apply it in all of our requests, especially in France, Switzerland and Belgium !"

Sean Penn Honorary Guide of the Raelian Movement

From the start, the actor and director Sean Penn has denounced the war organized by Bush and his sponsors in Afghanistan and Iraq. From the start, he has been asking for violence to stop!

On the 4th anniversary of the invasion of Iraq, he read a text that he also had printed in the Washington Post. We chose to reproduce it down here, for our pleasure. You will see similar words as the ones delivered by our Beloved Prophet over the past 4 years and more. For his support of absolute non-violence, for his respect for all lives, Rael has nominated him honorary Guide of Humanity.

Here is Sean Penn's text :

Four and a half years ago, I addressed the issue of war in an open letter to our President. Today I would like to again speak to him and his, directly. Mr. President, Mr. Cheney, Ms. Rice et al: Indeed America has a rich history of greatness -indeed, America is still today a devastating military superpower.

And because, in the absence of a competent or brave Congress, of a mobilized citizenry, that level of power lies in your hands, it is you who have misused it to become our country's and our constitution's most devastating enemy. You have broken our country and our hearts. The needless blood on your hands, and therefore, on our own, is drowning the freedom, the security, and the dream that America might have been, once healed of and awakened by, the tragedy of September 11, 2001.

But now, we are encouraged to self-censor any words that might be perceived as inflammatory - if our belief is that this war should stop today. We cower as you point fingers telling us to "support our troops." Well, you and the smarmy pundits in your pocket, those who bathe in the moisture of your soiled and bloodstained underwear, can take that noise and shove it. We will be snowed no more. Let's make this crystal clear. We do support our troops in our stand, while you exploit them and their families. The verdict is in. You lied, connived, and exploited your own countrymen and most of all, our troops.

You Mistrs Bush and Cheney; you Ms. Rice are villainously and criminally obscene people, obscene human beings, incompetent even to fulfill your own self-serving agenda, while tragically neglectful and destructive of ours and our country's. And I got a question for your daughters Mr. Bush. They're not children anymore. Do they support your policy in Iraq? If they do, how dare they not be in uniform, while the children of the poor; black, white, Asian, Hispanic, and all the other American working men and women are slaughtered, maimed and flown back into this country under cover of darkness.

Now, because I've been on the streets of Baghdad during this occupational war, outside the Green Zone, without security, and you haven't; I've met children there. In that country of 25 million, these children have now suffered minimally, a rainstorm of civilian death around and among them totaling the equivalent of two hundred September 11ths in just four years of war. Two hundred 9/11s. Two hundred 9/11s.

You want to rattle sabers toward Iran now? Let me tell you something about Iran, because I've been there and you haven't. Iran is a great country. A great country. Does it have its haters? You bet. Just like the United States has its haters. Does it have a corrupt regime? You bet. Just like the United States has a corrupt regime. Does it want a nuclear weapon? Maybe. Do we have one? You bet. But the people of Iran are great people. And if we give that corrupt leadership, (by attacking Iran militarily) the opportunity to unify that great country in hatred against us, we'll have been giving up one of our most promising future allies in decades. If you really know anything about Iran, you know exactly what I'm referring to. Of course your administration belittles diplomatic potential there, as those options rely on a credibility and geopolitical influence that you have aggressively squandered worldwide.

Speaking of squandering, how about the billion and a half dollars a day our Iraq-focused military is spending, where three weeks of that kind of spending, would pay the tab on a visionary levy-building project in New Orleans and relieve the entire continent of Africa from starvation and the spread of disease. Not to mention the continued funds now necessary, to not only rebuild our education and healthcare systems, but also, to give care and aid to the veterans of this war, both American and our Iraqi allies and friends who have lost everything.

You say we've kept the war on terror off our shores by responding to a criminal act of terror through state sponsored unilateral aggression in a country that took no part in that initial crime. That this war would be fought in Iraq or fought here. They are not our toilet. They are a country of human beings whose lives, while once oppressed by Saddam, are now lived in Dante's inferno.

My 15-year-old daughter was working on a comparative essay this week (you can ask Condi what a comparative essay is, as academic exercises fit the limits of her political expertise.) My daughter's essay, which understood substance over theory, discusses the strengths of the Nuremberg trial justice beside the alternate strategy of truth and reconciliation in South Africa, and I quote: "When we observe distinctions between one power and another, one justice and another, we consider the divide between retribution and reconciliation, of closure and disclosure." I can't do her essay justice in this forum, but at its core, it asks how, when, and why we compromise toward peace, punish for war, or balance both for something more.

This may focus another soft spot in the rhetoric of both sides. We're told not to engage in the "politics of attack." To "keep away from the negative"...Well, Mr. Bush, when speaking of your administration, that would leave us silent, and impotent indeed.

So, in conclusion, I address my remaining remarks to the choir: We all played nice recently at the sad passing of former President Ford. Pundits and players on all sides re-visited his pardoning of Richard Nixon with praise, stating that a divided nation found unity. But what of that precedent on deterrence now? Where is justice now? Let's unite, not only in stopping this war, but holding this administration accountable as well. Without impeachment, justice cannot prevail. In our time, or our children's. And let's make it clear to democrats and republicans alike that we are not willing to wait on '08 to hear them say again: "If I'd known then, what I know now."

Even in a so-called victory, what we saw yesterday was a House of Representatives that couldn't bring itself to represent either conscience or constituents. It's a tragedy that the Democratic Party's leadership in Congress refuses to allow the House to vote on Barbara Lee's amendment for a fully funded, orderly withdrawal of U.S. troops from Iraq by the end of this year. Elites circled the war wagons against this proposal, and postponed the day of reckoning that must come as soon as possible - a complete pullout of U.S. military forces from Iraq.

There are presidential candidates who understand this. We do have candidates of conscience. As things stand today, I will be voting for Dennis Kucinich, who has fought this war from the beginning. You might say Kucinich can't win. Well, we have an opportunity to re-establish the credibility of democracy as viewed by the world at large.

We can fire our current president. We can choose the next president. You and me, the farmer in Wisconsin, the boys at Google, and Bill Gates.

It's up to us to choose. Why don't we choose?!

Sean Penn

Our Beloved Prophet has expressed his support to President Mugabe and his government in Zimbabwe which decided to create a new radio station in order to counter the Western media that are, according to them, organizing propaganda against President Robert Mugabe. "We are under siege, bombarded by western media programs" has denounced the minister of Information, Sikhanyiso Ndlovu.

Our Beloved Prophet made the following comments regarding this action:

This is another admirable decision of Robert Mugabe. It is about time that African people stop being intoxicated by the media of the old colonizers who are still acting with their imperialist manners trying to prevent, with their propaganda, the real decolonization that still needs to be done : religious, cultural and economical. The creation of African radios and later of a network of televisions via a pan African satellite, a kind of CNN in Kama, which could be called KNN (Kama News Network) will permit to finally destroy the media domination of the old colonizers. They will be able to explain that to take the land from the descendants of the colonizers in order to give them to the poor African farmers is not being racist but it is rending social justice. The descendants of the colonizers wouldn't be the owners of hundreds of thousand of acres if their ancestors hadn't taken them illegally, using their force. Mugabe never said to the white people to go out of the country. He just took back what their ancestors had stolen so that he can redistribute it to the descendants of those who had their land stolen. The descendants of the colonizers were free to stay and work as the other ones. ... but they wanted to keep the privilege they received from their ancestor's pillage and western powers wanted it too, so that the wealth of Africa as well as the power that goes with it, can stay exclusively in the hands of the descendants of the colonizers so that they can keep on doing their politics of imperialists with these false Africans as accomplices – false Africans as they felt like African only when they owned something; once they had lost their privileges, they left to live in another country; so much for their supposed love of the country—If they had felt like real Zimbabweans they would have accepted to stay and still contribute to the economy of the country, in an equal manner with the black population. Instead of doing that, they preferred to get out of the country as for them it was better to go rather than not being the masters anymore...

Our Beloved Prophet also expressed his support to two artists who disturbed... the sculptor Cosimo Cavallaro who was supposed to expose at the beginning of April, during Easter week, a chocolate statue of Jesus, in the gallery of a hotel in Manhattan.

The local bishop didn't like it and put pressure on the hotel so that the exposition was banned. The reason for his anger wasn't because he was afraid people would prefer to eat the chocolate Jesus instead of his "tasteless" bread Jesus. No No, the reason of his big drama was the fact that Jesus was represented as he was on the cross, that is to say, naked J What is funny is that all American media showed only a representation of the statue from the back. It is only by finding the picture shown on the right, in a New Zealand newspaper, that I realized why he was so choiced... very happy to see that New Zealand is comfortable with the fact that Jesus had a penisJ

J.A.M Montoya, a Spanish artist is doing rather well in that department as well and our Beloved Prophet congratulated him too. You can see one of his pieces called "Masturbation of Jesus by Mary" J , published with some others of his pieces in a booklet sponsored by a regional government in Spain. There again, the Catholic Church wasn't too pleasedJ

A new law has just passed in Japan which allows women who want to divorce, the right to have their share of the family fortune that has been acquired during their life together. Japanese women have been very dependant on their husband's money for millennia and to think about divorce for them is almost unthinkable as it simply leads to poverty. This change in Japanese society which allows women to choose with whom they want to live is fundamental. Our Beloved Prophet said: "This is great news ! We support these new laws which give the possibility to the people who are not happy together to be happy again alone or with other partners. Freedom freedom!"

STRUCTURE

For info to all the members of the Raelian Movement who live in countries where they cannot state that they are Raelians as they could face jail or death....

An article published by the BBC on April 13th J

The Internet has given the individual unprecedented power to reach out to millions but some governments are cautious, even hostile, to giving their citizens free access to ideas they deem too democratic and dangerous.

Cuba, Egypt, Tunisia: they are all popular with holiday makers but they also censor and even lock up journalists and bloggers. This is why the media rights group, Reporters Without Borders, has published The Handbook for Bloggers and Cyber-Dissidents.

"There is another side to the picture post-card," said Robert Menard, secretary general, Reporters Without Borders. "There are around 100 people in jail in Tunisia and the entire media is controlled by the powers that be and there are bloggers who have been locked up just for criticizing the Tunisian president."

In many countries a journalism student covering a demonstration of school children would be commended for his initiative.

In Syria, student Mesud Hamid posted photos on the net of Kurdish pupils demanding equal rights. He was arrested while taking an exam at university.

"I was tortured," he said. "For one year and three months I was held in a cell measuring one metre by two. I didn't see the sun or sky for all that time." Mr Hamid has since fled to France.

Remaining anonymous

So what do you do if you want to escape detection from authorities who might not like your work as much as you do? The Handbook for Bloggers and Cyber-Dissidents is pretty technical but it also contains some simple tips, so you can say what you think without having to worry the censors or cyber-police too much.

If you want to protect your anonymity you can use a proxy, using a proxy is very simple. Anybody can do it even if you're not a geek. "The first thing is don't write anything under your real name," said Julien Pain of Reporters Without Borders. "Even if you are using a pen name, then you have to be careful because the authorities can track you down on the internet." You might be tight-lipped about who you are, but your computer is screaming your presence all over the net. All net-connected computers get assigned an IP address - which ensures that the data you request is sent to the right place. It can let people know which websites you have visited, which e-mails you have sent and which articles you have posted. But if you are clever you can cover your tracks.

"If you want to protect your anonymity you can use a proxy, using a proxy is very simple. Anybody can do it even if you're not a geek," said Mr Pain.

Now there are two ways you can do this. An open proxy is essentially a computer, based elsewhere on the web, through which you can surf, send e-mails or post articles anonymously. You have to change your IP address to one listed on various sites and, in principle you should be able to work anonymously. "In principle", because open proxies can also be used by hackers, so administrators often block them after a few days. Another option might be a web-based proxy site abroad like Anonymouse or ProxyLord. They are going down well among surfers and bloggers in China.

Great Wall of China

China's censorship machine blocks information in various ways. "The authorities would not be able to trace the IP because you're doing this through a proxy site, and that's probably the most efficient way now for the readers in China now to visit officially blocked websites," explained Xiaorong Li, a research professor at the University of Maryland.

Proxies have their drawbacks as they can be blocked. But for a very effective, albeit technical way of staying anonymous you could use The Onion Router (TOR). This is so called because the data it sends between computers is encrypted in successive layers like an onion. The data also takes an unpredictable path through all the proxies making up the TOR network. Each proxy peels off a layer of encryption, revealing the next proxy it has to go to. Intercept the message at any point and the identities of both sender and recipient are protected. Not until it arrives, can the message be read.

There are less technical ways of avoiding censorship. In China filters seek out specific words that the authorities consider contentious. The mere mention of Tiananmen Square would be enough to get you noticed. But you may, however, be able to fox the filters. "If you want to put the words June 4th, you put a comma or a period in between June and 4th, so they are not one phrase and that enables this word to evade detection through the filter, because the filter works by phrases: June 4th or 1989," explained Xiaorong Li. "If you put some kind of punctuation between the words they become not a phrase but readers can perfectly understand what you are saying." There is no sure-fire way of staying anonymous on the web and avoiding detection. But if you are careful about what you do, you can cut down your chances of being caught up by the cyber-police.

Reminder for all the members of the International Raelian Movement:

Whatever responsibility has been given to you, whether it is a continental or planetary one, this doesn't mean that you have no obligation locally, as a member of the local Raelian Movement where you live. If a planetary or a continental responsible is fully independent in his task from his National Guide, when the National Guide requires his participation to a local event, our Beloved Prophet reminds us that he "MUST absolutely obey the directives of his National Guide or Continental Guide, including attending meetings, trainings and any other local activity. »

For our pleasure...

Cameron, our Internet manager, has gathered some of the data which were available on our website for the past 12 months of activities, knowing that these sites are privileged places where those who want to know about our philosophy are visiting.

Here after a few tables as well as the comments of our Beloved Prophet:

"Congratulations to Cameron for all the data which summarizes a year of visits with people who read the books as well as the actual numbers of the members of the Raelian Movement.

These numbers show that we are not in 86 countries anymore, but in 182 countries!

It is also fantastic to see that the USA is first as it is a priority, as well as the excellent results from South Korea!

It is interesting to note that, regarding the number of members, France is still second in number but African countries like Ivory Coast are coming close.

Canada is at the 4th position with South Korea and Burkina Faso real close!

Finally it is fascinating to see that the USA is in the 8th position with 132 members, in front of Italy, Belgium and Switzerland which have existed for a while now.

No media can ever say now that the Raelian Movement is an organization which counts mainly French speaking people. French people are a small minority if we compare to the total number of structure members: 2300 members including 288 French people.
